- Wait before washing: After getting your locs colored, it's essential to wait at least until your next grooming visit (2-3 weeks) before washing. This allows the color to fully settle and reduces the risk of premature fading.
- Use a color-safe shampoo: When it's time to wash your locs, use a gentle, color-safe shampoo specifically designed for treated hair. Avoid harsh shampoos that can strip the color or cause excessive drying.
- Condition regularly: Follow up your shampoo with a moisturizing conditioner to keep your locs hydrated and nourished. Locs By Lisa's Lemongrass Shampoo & Conditioner is formulated for color-treated hair to help preserve the vibrancy of your color.
- Protect from sun exposure: Prolonged sun exposure can lead to color fading. Shield your locs from direct sunlight by wearing a hat, scarf, or using a UV protectant spray. This helps preserve the longevity and vibrancy of your color.
- Avoid chlorine and saltwater: Chlorine and saltwater can be harsh on color-treated hair. Before swimming, wet your locs with clean water and apply a leave-in conditioner or oil to create a protective barrier. Consider wearing a swim cap to further shield your locs.

AFTERCARE

- Be mindful of styling products: Be cautious when selecting styling products. Opt for color-safe and gentle formulations to avoid color-stripping or product buildup. Avoid using heavy waxes or greasy products that can weigh down your locs or make them appear dull.
- Be gentle when detangling: When detangling your locs, use a wide-toothed comb or your fingers to gently work through any knots or tangles. Start from the ends and work your way up to minimize breakage.
- Schedule regular touch-ups: Depending on the rate of hair growth, consider scheduling regular touch-up appointments with your colorist to maintain the vibrancy of your color and address any new growth or roots.
- Consult your stylist: If you have any concerns or questions about caring for your color-treated locs, don't hesitate to reach out to your stylist. They can provide personalized advice and recommend specific products or treatments to maintain the health and vibrancy of your color.
